

Upclose with personal Martin Crowe

Martin Crowe, the former New Zealand international cricketer and current executive producer for Sky TV, has been appointed the company spokesperson for Advanced Hair Studio New Zealand.

Martin has been going bald since 1993 and over the past 12 months has been in a programme that has restored his head of hair to its "former beauty."

"It was my choice to have the treatment," says Martin, "I decided that if I didn't do something about it, I would always wonder...I had to face up to it."

Martin has been "blown away by people's reaction" to his new hair. Particularly fellow commentator Ian Smith, who quipped, "now you have the hair covered, just get rid of a few chins..."

But, Martin is happy with his new look, smiling he says, "I feel more relaxed and comfortable...I love my new hair!"
